

21H.181

Libertarianism in History

Reading Response 3: On Changing Your Mind

Unless you are a person whose views about the world are quite robust and completely theorized, there is likely some issue related to this course as to which you have changed your mind or revised your perspective in some significant way.

For this last forum post, tell us what that issue is and why you changed your mind. If there are specific readings or class discussions that prompted the change, please reference them. If your views are entirely unaltered, please submit a sheet of paper with the sentence "It is OK and sometimes a good thing to reconsider one's views about important social and political issues" handwritten 25 times. ☺

Responses due by Session 25. I look forward to reading them!

MIT OpenCourseWare
<http://ocw.mit.edu>

21H.181 Libertarianism in History
Spring 2014

For information about citing these materials or our Terms of Use, visit: <http://ocw.mit.edu/terms>.