

Individual memos on Unit IV will be due by lecture #19

What assumptions that you have made in reaching your understanding of the "seven step model" were surfaced by the shift to the Dutch context and to the problem of sustainable development?

Does confronting these assumptions require you to rethink your understanding of the model?

How would you revise your account of the model as a guide for practice to take account of these challenges?